PREFACE.

THE London and North Western Railway Company was formed on the 16th July, 1846, by the amalgamation of the London and Birmingham, Grand Junction, and Manchester and Birmingham Railways. The Company now owns a mileage of over 1,940 miles, and the line is in direct communication with every part of England and Wales. Together with the Caledonian Railway the line forms the "West Coast" Royal Mail route to Scotland, by which tourists can travel direct from any part of England to Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dundee, Perth, Aberdeen, and the North of Scotland.

In addition to the famous mail and express routes between Holyhead and Kingstown and Holyhead and North Wall, Dublin, which are so well known to all visitors to Ireland, there are splendid services of Steamers between Holyhead and Greenore, Fleetwood and Belfast, Fleetwood and Londonderry, Stranraer and Larne, and between Liverpool and Belfast, by means of which every district of Ireland can be reached.

Special services of trains are run between Scotland, the North and North-east of England and Bristol and the West of England, by way of the Severn Tunnel. Another service connects Liverpool and Manchester with Newcastle, York, Hull, Harrogate, Scarboro', and the North Eastern Railway system generally, via Leeds.

Persons journeying to the Continent will find the Company's Continental Expresses most convenient. A train starts from Birmingham, and passes through Peterboro' to Harwich, whence steamers run to Antwerp, Hamburg, and other ports; whilst passengers travelling via London can avail themselves of the Tube Railway connections to Charing Cross or London Bridge, or the London and North Western Railway Company's service of Omnibuses running from Euston Station to

Waterloo Station and vice versa; or they may travel, by the Company's trains running between Willesden Junction and Victoria (London Brighton and South Coast and District Railways), and Charing Cross (District Railway). The through fares do not include conveyance by cab, Tube Railway, or omnibus across LONDON.

For arrangements as to through special carriages for parties, apply to the Superintendent of the Line, Euston Station, London, N.W.

Travellers by the London and North Western line can, via Willesden Junction, connect with the London and South Western, the Great Western, the South Eastern and Chatham, and the London Brighton and South Coast Railways, and so save a cab journey across London. Connections are also made with the North London and the District Railways, thus affording direct access to the City and the Suburbs.

An express service of trains is now in operation between Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, Leamington, &c., and Brighton, Eastbourne, Margate, Ramsgate, Folkestone, Dover, Southampton, Bournemouth, Weymouth, and other South Coast Stations, via Willesden Junction, which service will be found very convenient by passengers travelling from the North of England to the South Coast, and vice versa.

Many of the disadvantages of travelling have been removed by the splendid arrangements made on the long-distance trains. Breakfast, Luncheon, Tea, and Dining Cars are run on the principal Day trains for first, second, and third class passengers, and Sleeping Saloons are provided on the Night trains for first class passengers.

Within the wide area of country covered by the London and North Western Company's system, the Holiday-maker, whatever his tastes, whatever his pursuits, will find innumerable suitable spots for sojourn, and the task of selection will be made easier by a careful study of the facts and information contained in the following pages.

Principal Points of Interest on a journey from London to Carlisle.

EUSTON SQUARE STATION is one of the largest and handsomest in London. Soon after leaving Euston, Camden, with its large goods warehouses and engine sheds, is passed, and Primrose Hill Tunnel, about a mile long, is traversed, emerging from which, Kilburn is passed.

WILLESDEN is a very important junction, connecting the North Western System with the Southern Railway Companies' lines. Soon after, the River Brent is crossed, Sudbury passed, and HARROW-ON-THE-HILL comes into view. Harrow is noted as the seat of one of the great public schools of England, with its memories of Byron and other famous men.

PINNER, near which are the Commercial Travellers' Schools. Here Hertfordshire is entered. Carriages may be had at this station (if previously ordered) for Ruislip Reservoir, where good fishing can be obtained.

BUSHEY, near which the line crosses the River Colne, which, with its tributary the Chess, yields some good fishing.

WATFORD (the junction for St. Albans and Rickmansworth) has some 30,000 inhabitants. London Orphan Asylum close to the station. Cassiobury Park (Earl of Essex) is on the left, with Grove Park adjoining.

KING'S LANGLEY, with its square tower and old church. The birth-place of Nicholas Breakspeare, the only Englishman who became Pope of Rome.

BOXMOOR, a pretty suburban resort, with the old Norman church at Hemel Hempstead in the distance.

BERKHAMPSTEAD, the birthplace of the poet Cowper, is famous for its ruined castle, built soon after the Conquest. On the right is Ashridge Park (Earl Brownlow), and on the left, amid fine trees, Tring Hall, built by Charles II. for Nell Gwynne.

TRING. The line at this spot is 330 feet above the level of Euston Square Terminus, it being the highest point reached on the London and Birmingham Railway (as the London and North Western was first called).

CHEDDINGTON. A branch goes off to Aylesbury (of duck celebrity), some seven miles to the left.

LEIGHTON BUZZARD has a beautiful Gothic church and ancient cross. The Norman church of Stewkley, closely adjoining, is also interesting. Linslade Hall and Church are on the right, and, farther off, the village of Great Brickhill.

BLETCHLEY (junction for the University Cities of Oxford and Cambridge). On the right is Fenny Stratford, on the rising ground. After leaving Bletchley, a fine view is had of the church of Loughton, with its rectory; on the right, and close to the line, the village of Bradwell.

WOLVERTON, near the River Ouse, which is soon passed, and Northamptonshire entered.

ROADE. The scenery here is pretty, with the lofty spire of Hanslope on the right.

NORTHAMPTON, principally noted for its boot and shoe industry. In the neighbourhood are sites of Danish and Saxon camps, and Althorp Park, the seat of Earl Spencer. Northampton is the junction for Peterboro', Stamford, Market Harboro', Newark, Nottingham, and Doncaster.

WEEDON. A military station, capable of containing some 240,000 stand of arms. To the left is the old town of Daventry, with interesting ruins, Roman camps, &c.

RUGBY, on the Avon, is famous as the seat of one of England's great public schools. On the left is the village of Bilton, associated with the name of Addison. Rugby is the junction for Leamington, Birmingham, and the Black Country.

NUNEATON, an important station, whence lines branch off to Coventry and Kenilworth; also to Leicester, Market Bosworth, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, Burton-on-Trent, Loughboro', and the Charnwood Forest country.

ATHERSTONE. Here the old Roman road, Watling Street, is crossed on the level, and to the left is Merevale Tower and other interesting spots.

TAMWORTH, on the River Tame, has a fine monument to Peel, an interesting old church, &c. Drayton Manor (Sir Robert Peel, Bart.) is to the left. A few miles beyond Tamworth the line enters Staffordshire.

LICHFIELD. The cathedral, which was founded about 665, and rebuilt in 1296, has been recently restored, and is well worth a visit. Lichfield was the birthplace of Johnson, who always spoke of it with enthusiasm.

STAFFORD, the birthplace of Izaak Walton, the father of angling. On the left, a few miles on, Eccleshall Castle, which has been the seat of the Bishops of Lichfield since the thirteenth century.

WHITMORE. A mile or so off on the right is Trentham Park, the seat of the Duke of Sutherland.

MADELEY. Soon after passing Madeley, Cheshire is entered. Crewe Hall (Lord Crewe) is on the right—a handsome and commodious structure.

CREWE. Here are the chief engine factories of the London and North Western Company. Crewe is one of the most important junctions on the London and North Western Company's system, it being a centre from which branches radiate, not only to numerous districts of the London and North Western Railway, but also to the lines of the Great Western and North Stafford Companies. One section of the London and North Western Railway runs north to Warrington, Preston, and Carlisle; a second runs south-west to Shrewsbury, South and Central Wales, and the West of England, via the Severn Tunnel; whilst north-west a line runs to Chester, North Wales, and Holyhead, through which latter station passes the principal Irish traffic of the Company. Still another line runs in a north-easterly direction, and communicates with Stockport, Manchester, Leeds, and the North-Eastern portion of England. On the journey from here to Warrington—twenty-five miles—the line traverses the country of the Cheshire Hunt.

WINSFORD, noted for its large salt works.

ACTON BRIDGE. Splendid view from Dutton Aqueduct. Just before reaching Warrington the train passes over the famous Manchester Ship Canal.

WARRINGTON. Its bridge was broken down to stay the advance of Prince Charles in 1745. Churches and public buildings.

WIGAN. All Souls' Church is as old as the time of Edward III., and contains some interesting monuments of the old Bradshaighs, a descendant of whom, in the person of the Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, has his seat at Haigh Hall, in the neighbourhood.

PRESTON, on the Ribble, is the junction for Blackpool. At Preston the Scottish Rebellion of 1715 was broken; and again, in 1745, Prince Charles passed through it on his way south. Near Preston are many places of interest.

GARSTANG AND CATTERALL. Two miles off is the village. Not far off are the ruins of Greenhaigh Castle, which was occupied by the troops of Charles I. in 1643, and by the Pretender in 1715.

LANCASTER, a fine old town. Its chief feature from the line is the Castle, a modern building. It contains courts, gaol, &c. After leaving Lancaster, the River Lune is crossed, and Morecambe Bay comes into sight on the left, affording a splendid view of the sea.

HEST BANK, near which, at Carnforth, is a curious cave, out of which a stream issues. Soon after the county of Westmorland is entered, and the scenery becomes more beautiful.

OXENHOLME. Here the Kendal and Windermere line branches off for the English Lake District. Convenient train services are arranged by the Railway Company to suit the requirements of passengers.

LOW GILL. Junction for the Ingleton branch, which forms a connection with the Midland system.

SHAP. Four miles off are Shap Wells, interesting from their saline spring, remains of an old abbey, old tombs, &c. Shap Summit is nearly 1,000 feet above the level of the line at Morecambe Bay. Soon after leaving Clifton and Lowther (the next station) the county of Cumberland is entered.

PENRITH is an interesting old market town. The ruins of the ancient castle are close to the line on the right. The view from the Beacon Hill is magnificent. Ullswater Lake a few miles off. At Penrith a line goes off on the left to Keswick, Cockermouth, Workington, &c.

CARLISLE is a fine old cathedral city containing much that is of interest to tourists. The Cathedral is a fine building. The court-house, &c., are an extensive pile of buildings.

A Glance at the Principal Tourist Resorts reached by London and North Western Railway.

SHAKESPEARE'S HOUSE, STRATFORD-ON AVON.

STRATFORD-ON-AVON.

NEVER have the works of Shakespeare been read more widely than at the present time, and it is doubtful whether they have ever been more highly appreciated and admired, yet comparatively few of his fellow-countrymen—especially Londoners—have visited the birthplace of the great poet and dramatist, and this notwithstanding the richness of the country from a scenic point of view and its many attractions for the student and holiday-seeker. To reach the little market-town of Stratford-on-Avon, passengers leave the London and North Western main line at Blisworth, and travel along the East and West Junction Railway via Morton-Pinkney. On arrival at Stratford the visitor's inclinations will, no doubt, first prompt inquiries for Shakespeare's House, situated in Henley Street, where can be seen the room in which England's greatest intellectual genius was born. A few minutes' walk and Holy Trinity Church, standing in a picturesque spot on the banks of the River Avon, is reached. Near to the altar-rail of this sacred edifice the poet was buried, and in a niche of the wall remains the life-size bust which is considered to be the only trustworthy representation of the features of Shakespeare. A visit should also be paid to the Memorial Theatre, with its gallery of books and pictures. A short and pleasant walk by way of the Shottery footpath leads to the cottage of Anne Hathaway, whom the poet married.

To those who have but little time to spend in the district the day excursions arranged about twice a week during the summer months from London (Euston) will forcibly appeal. Arrangements are made for the passengers to leave London at about 9.15 a.m. and visit during the day, Stratford, Warwick Castle, Guy's Cliff, and Kenilworth.

BANQUETING HALL, KENILWORTH CASTLE.

Special announcements giving full particulars of this delightful outing are issued, and can be obtained at the London town offices and stations. Special arrangements can be made for parties from Literary Societies, Schools, and other Institutions, and Secretaries should communicate with the District Superintendent at Euston.

Passengers holding week-end tickets from London to Stratford-on-Avon are granted the privilege of returning from Leamington, Warwick, or Kenilworth, on the understanding that they make their own way between the places named.

Tourists holding tickets to and from Northern resorts are permitted to break the journey at Blisworth, where they can re-book for Stratford.

LEAMINGTON AND DISTRICT.

WARWICK CASTLE.

THE town of Leamington is situated in a neighbourhood of great beauty, charming walks and drives abounding in all directions. The celebrated wells and springs are, perhaps, the chief sources of attraction, the fountains at the Old Well Pump Room, built in Bath Street in 1813, and at the railway bridge in the High Street, being free to the public. About a mile distant is the little old town of Warwick, with its steep, crooked streets, quaint timbered houses, and historic castle, described by Sir Walter Scott as "the finest monument of ancient and chivalrous splendour which yet remains uninjured by time." Visitors are permitted on certain days to view several rooms of the Castle containing many treasures, including the famous Warwick Vase and pictures by Holbein, Vandyck, and Rubens. Whilst in the district a visit will, of course, be paid to Kenilworth Castle, three and a half miles from Leamington. Although time has wrought many changes in the appearance of the famous spot, there is still to be seen the broken ruin of Mervyn's Tower, associated with the name of Amy Robsart; Cæsar's Tower, the drained moat and pool (shrunk to a tenth of its former expanse), and many other points of interest to remind us of the splendour and pageantry which existed within the massive walls in the days of the great Elizabeth.

With a view to affording facilities for the touring of this historic district, the London and North Western Company arrange day excursions from Euston during the summer months about twice a week, by which passengers are enabled to visit Stratford-on-Avon and then travel by coach to Warwick Castle, Guy's Cliff, and Kenilworth Castle, the return journey to London being made from Kenilworth Station. Another facility is that the holders of week-end tickets to Leamington, Warwick, or Kenilworth may return from Stratford-on-Avon on the understanding that they make their own way between the places named.

ASHWOOD DALE, BUXTON.

BUXTON.

CELEBRATED even in Roman times, the baths of Buxton remain among the most effectual in the kingdom for rheumatic troubles, and everything has been done by parks, woods, hotels, and places of recreation to make the resort attractive to visitors. In Buxton itself the most conspicuous features are the Devonshire Hospital, once a riding school, with its great dome, exceeding in breadth those of St. Peter's and St. Paul's; and the Pavilion, with its concert hall, theatre, conservatory, and reading room, where entertainments are held constantly. As a health resort Buxton has a very high reputation, and its excellent sanitary system may be considered as unsurpassed for efficiency. There are arrangements for a number of excursions in the neighbourhood, the most interesting being, probably, to Chatsworth, the magnificent seat of the Duke of Devonshire, and Haddon Hall, the scene of the romantic elopement of Dorothy Vernon.

The shortest route from Euston to Buxton is via Nuneaton, Ashbourne, and the new line, tourists being allowed to break their journey at Ashbourne and any station between there and Parsley Hay to enable them to visit the beautiful Dovedale district.

TISSINGTON SPIRES.

ASHBOURNE AND THE DOVEDALE DISTRICT.

THOUGH not three miles in length, Dovedale remains probably the loveliest bit of natural scenery in England, and altogether redeems for the county of Stafford, in which it partly lies, the opprobrious misnomer of "the Black Country." At the foot of Dovedale, Ilam Church keeps a beautiful and pathetic monument by Chantrey well worth seeing; and the "Isaak Walton" Inn commemorates the association of the famous angler with the district. Further along the railway Mappleton, the lovely old village of Tissington, with its Elizabethan hall by the roadside, and the station of Alsop-en-le-Dale, all give access to the famous little valley. From Alsop-en-le-Dale it is but a short distance to Hartington, which place gives a title to the eldest sons of the Dukes of Devonshire. Tourists making Ashbourne their headquarters should make a point of visiting the church containing armoured figures of seven generations of the Cockayne family, dating from 1372; and also an exquisite figure of a little child—"Penelope, only child of Sir Brook and Dame Susanna Boothby."

Passengers with tourist tickets to Burton travelling via Ashbourne are permitted to break the journey there, and also at any station in the Dovedale region.

ALPINE BRIDGE, LLANDRINDOD WELLS.

LLANDRINDOD WELLS.

ON the Continent there are various places where, at great expense and physical trouble, people go from England in search of health, practically ignorant of the fact that they can find localities equally serviceable without having to brave the discomfort of crossing the Channel. It is no exaggeration to say that among the mountains round Llandrindod, which is so rich in mineral deposits, there are springs equal in value to any that can be found on the Continent. The merits of the waters and the surpassing beauty of the surrounding country have been testified by many well-known men in the medical profession. "I conceive and know, as a physician, that there is no place in Central Wales that has so many advantages as Llandrindod for the promotion of health," says one of them. In recent years hotels have sprung up as if by magic—large, well-ventilated buildings, excellently furnished, and each with its staff of thoroughly-trained, civil, and obliging servants. One may safely expect to return from a holiday spent here with increased health and vigour.

Through carriages are run from London (Euston), Birmingham, Manchester, and Liverpool to Llandrindod, so that the journeys can be performed without trouble or inconvenience.

RIVER IRVON, LLANGAMMARCH.

LLANGAMMARCH AND LLANWRTYD WELLS.

THE "Three Welsh Spas" is the name given to Llandrindod, Llangammarch, and Llanwrtyd Wells. Of the former, reference is made on the previous page.

Llangammarch, thirteen miles south of Llandrindod, stands six hundred feet above the sea level at the junction of the Rivers Gammarch and Irvon. Besides sulphur, it possesses a spring which is almost unique on account of it containing as a constituent part barium chloride. The climate is one of the mildest and most equable in Great Britain, and anyone choosing the winter-time for a holiday here would probably find wild flowers in bloom at Christmas, and that frost and snow are scarcely known in the locality. Splendid salmon and trout fishing is to be had in the River Irvon and its tributary stream, and there are good opportunities for shooting, pheasants, grouse, partridges, and rabbits being included in the sport. There are also excellent golf links, possessing both variety and natural difficulties.

Llanwrtyd, seven miles from Llangammarch, is as curious and quaint a village as one can find in the country. It is picturesquely situated on the banks of the Irvon at the entrance to a charming valley. Anglers have plenty of scope, and the disciples of "Old Izaak" can freely practise the gentle art both for salmon and trout. Several very interesting drives and walks are obtainable, and all lovers of golf will rejoice to hear that the links—18 holes—are of a very sporting nature. Many springs of sulphur, saline, and chalybeate occur in the locality.

Much more might be said of the benefits derivable from a sojourn in the region of the "Three Welsh Spas," but let us hope that sufficient has been set forth to suggest to those in search of health that before hurrying off to the Continent or elsewhere, a trial be given of the waters and delightful surroundings of Central Wales.

When journeying via London and North Western Railway and Shrewsbury, a visit to Church Stretton and Knighton en route may be recommended on account of the natural charm of the places; and there is, of course, the old town of Shrewsbury, full of interesting reminiscences.

SWANSEA.

TO those unacquainted with the spot the name of Swansea does not perhaps suggest an ideal retreat for the business or family man in search of a holiday, but, although the place has gained its reputation chiefly as a seaport, there are many features which render its claim to be a first-class health resort weighty and reasonable. The mildness of the climate, wide stretch of sands, beautiful western suburbs, with sheltered and easily accessible bays in the Peninsula of Gower, constitute forcible attractions. In addition to the interest attaching to the medieval castle built by Henry de Newburg, Earl of Warwick, the Royal Institution and Museum, visitors will find no small degree of pleasure in the Victoria, Brynmill, and Cwmdonkin Parks. The Mumbles, known as the playground of Swansea, is about five miles from the town. Its chief glory is probably the magnificent cliffs extending from Mumbles Head to Worms Head, twenty miles away, broken at intervals by a series of bays remarkable for variety of scene. The pier near to the lighthouse is the finest in the Bristol Channel, and is highly popular with visitors, who gather in large numbers to enjoy the band and vocal concerts.

Tourist tickets are issued to Swansea, and there is a good service of trains from Manchester, Liverpool, Shrewsbury, and other principal towns via Craven Arms and Llandovery.

NUMBLES (GENERAL VIEW).

WATERGATE ROW, CHESTER.

CHESTER.

AN Englishman's knowledge of his own country would not be complete unless the ancient city of Chester had been visited. It is of unknown antiquity, and stands to-day in its plan and general features essentially a Roman town, with the four great streets crossing at a common centre. The old city walls have been carefully preserved, and the circuit forms a most interesting walk of about two miles. The various towers and buildings are replete with historic associations, and the archæological student will linger here deep in reflection. Outside the walls, on the western side, is the racecourse, and near by is the Grosvenor Bridge across the River Dee, with its single span of two hundred feet—one of the largest stone arches in the world. An unique feature of Chester is its "Rows": porticoes or passageways above the roofs of the ground floor. They form elevated streets in which many of the best shops are to be found. It would take pages to give anything like a full description of the many places of interest in this city. Suffice it has probably been said to create an appetite in tourists and others to know more of its history; but mention must be made of the fine cathedral, standing on ground that has been the site of a Christian church since the second century.

Holders of tourist tickets to North Wales and to Ireland may break the journey at Chester.

THE SANDS, RHYL.

RHYL.

SITUATED at the extremity of the far-famed Vale of Clwyd, Rhyl has a reputation of increasing popularity as a first-class resort for lovers of a seaside holiday. The sands, noted for their solidity and safety, are very extensive, and the bathing facilities are excellent. A fine marine lake, with a water surface of forty acres, has been constructed at great expense, and here boating and yachting can be indulged in at all hours of the day. There are also splendid golf links and bowling greens. The atmosphere is bracing, and there is, generally, an abundance of sunshine. A magnificent marine drive, a pier 780 yards in length, and roads in good condition for cycling, are among the many attractions. Add to these numerous opportunities for visiting some of the most picturesque scenery in North Wales, you have a list of forcible inducements for making Rhyl the centre for a holiday in this delightful district.

Enquire at the railway station for programme and bill giving particulars of rail and coach tours, cheap excursions, &c.

COLWYN BAY.

COLWYN BAY AND OLD COLWYN.

THERE are few holiday resorts which have more surely grown in popularity in recent years than Colwyn Bay and Old Colwyn.

Colwyn Bay lies in a very sheltered position, and medical men are known to entertain a very high opinion of the beneficial effects of its climate. The atmosphere is remarkably dry, the average annual rainfall being less than thirty inches. In the Pavilion, which is capable of seating two thousand persons, high-class concerts are given each evening during the summer season. The sea-bathing is both safe and good. The numerous walks in the neighbourhood are exceptionally attractive and picturesque, one of them being through the well-known Pwllcrochan Woods. Within the last year or two a fine promenade has been constructed, which is lighted by electric arc lamps, and is well provided with tasteful and commodious glass shelters and seats.

Travelling from the East the train first arrives at Old Colwyn, which is a mile or two from the Colwyn Bay resort. The former place will commend itself more particularly to those who wish to spend a quiet holiday away from anything resembling a crowd. Being well sheltered from the east wind, the climate is very suitable for any not in robust health. The water supply is of the purest description, and is practically unlimited.

Facilities are afforded for many excellent rail and coach trips, Conway Castle, Llandudno, Bettws-y-Coed, and several other places of attraction being easily accessible.

CASTLE STREET, CONWAY.

CONWAY.

FEW travellers along the North Wales Coast and to Ireland via Holyhead fail to look out when they are approaching Llandudno Junction Station for the fine old, picturesque castle standing at the mouth of the River Conway. This lofty ruin, with its massive walls, has the reputation of presenting the most charming picture of any castle in the Principality ; and any visitors to Llandudno, Colwyn Bay, Penmaenmawr, and the district would miss one of the most interesting spots were they to return home without exploring this historic pile. Conway itself is a little market town which was in former years famous for its pearl fisheries. Sychant Pass and Conway Mountain are within easy reach of the town, and afford a very pleasant trip for pedestrians. Notice will be taken, especially by those of an engineering turn of mind, of the Suspension Bridge, with its span of 327 feet, and the London and North Western Railway Company's Tubular Bridge, both near to the castle walls.

LLANDUDNO.

THE many attractions abounding at and in the neighbourhood of Llandudno fully justify its claim to be the "Queen of Welsh Watering-places," and intending visitors may confidently look forward to a holiday spent here being productive of increased health and the recollection of a number of picturesque views, varied and beautiful. The promenade is one of the finest in Great Britain, and the beach is admirably adapted for bathing, which may be indulged in at all states of the tide. One of the chief features of Llandudno is the excellent musical arrangements, a band of about forty performers playing regularly during the season in the pavilion (capable of seating four thousand persons), in addition to the town band on the parade. There are also two opera and play houses to meet the tastes of theatre goers. Amongst the many places of interest are the Great Orme's Head (to the summit of which there is now a cable tramway, and round which is a carriage drive affording a good sea view for several miles), the Little Orme, St. Tudno's Church (on the top of the Great Orme), and Gloddaeth Hall.

Llandudno will be found to be a very convenient centre for rail and coach trips in the Snowdon and other popular districts of North Wales.

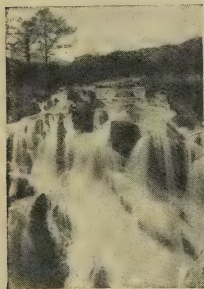

MINERS' BRIDGE, BETTWS-Y-COED.

BETTWS-Y-COED.

“THE most beautiful region in the British Isles” is surely a spot to be included in the list of holiday resorts. The description is high-sounding, but the words have been used by a competent authority, and few who have spent a day or two in the district will be inclined to regard them as exaggerated. The charming scenery ; wonderful foliage of innumerable trees ; the silver stream gently wending its way amidst interrupting stones and boulders ; the majestic Swallow Falls ; the Fairy Glen—all combine to leave upon the memory such pictures as are a joy for ever. No wonder that artists love to linger here with brush and canvas. Bettws-y-Coed is a good centre from which to explore the eastern district of Snowdon, and there are many facilities for coach trips in the district.

SWALLOW FALLS.

Passengers holding tourist tickets to Bettws-y-Coed, besides being allowed to break the journey at Glan Conway, Llanrwst, and a number of other places, are permitted to visit Llandudno either on the outward or homeward journey without extra charge.

LLANRWST BRIDGE.

LLANRWST.

LLANRWST is a market town, and possesses many interesting features, among which may be mentioned the old Welsh Church, venerated on account of its containing the stone coffin in which the remains of Llewelyn, the last of the native Princes, were deposited.

The bridge, built by the celebrated Welsh architect, Inigo Jones, is a fine structure, spanning the Conway in three arches. The view from the bridge, looking up the River, is extremely beautiful, whilst the situation affords the angler a ready means of plying his sport.

Gwydyr Castle, the seat of Earl Carrington, open to visitors, will well repay a visit by the tourist. The Castle is an ancient structure, well preserved, and to admirers of fine oak carving and tapestry will be found particularly interesting.

In the neighbourhood is the Grey Mare's Tail Waterfall, which tourists should make a point of visiting.

Breaks, carriages, &c., can be hired at the station. The charge for conveyance (one-horse vehicle) is 1s. per mile, and 3d. for driver, and half fare back.

CONWAY ROAD, TREFRIW.

TREFRIW.

NO visitor should pass unexplored this quaint spot, which for prettiness, quiet seclusion, and the varied character of the scenery in which it is embedded, is unsurpassed by any village in North Wales. The lakes afford good sport for anglers, while the chalybeate (sulphur) Mineral Waters are most beneficial. The place is also within easy distance of Crafnant and Geirionydd Lakes, and is a favourite resort of artists.

In the summer a conveyance meets all Trains at Llanrwst and Trefriw Station, by which passengers for Trefriw are conveyed at a moderate charge.

Steamers, conveying passengers, ply between Conway and Trefriw daily during the season; the sailings vary according to the state of the tide.

There are good Golf Links and a Tennis Court and Bowling Green.

PENMAENMAWR.

THE favourite resort of the late Mr. Gladstone! Such a recommendation will be sufficient in itself for no small number of English folk who have not forgotten the remarkable energy and health of the great statesman. "Penmaen-mawr," or, in other words, the "Great Stone Head," is the name of the mountain which, rising directly out of the sea to a height of fifteen hundred feet, terminates the Snowdonian range to the North. The town lies protected from easterly and south-easterly winds, and, at the same time, enjoys all the advantages of an open beach facing the beautiful Beaumaris Bay, bounded on the west by the Menai Straits and on the east by the Great Orme's Head. The peculiar combination of sea and mountain air is one of the many health-giving sources which characterise this place. When too warm by the sea shore it is easily possible to ascend one of the many hills in the vicinity, and there enjoy fresh and invigorating breezes.

MENAI STRAITS FROM BRITANNIA BRIDGE.

BANGOR AND DISTRICT.

BANGOR is a city of many attractions, both for the tourist and the antiquarian. The beautiful scenery, fine country walks, the many facilities for sea-bathing and boating, together with the cathedral and numerous colleges, afford opportunities for passing a week or two full of interest. Amongst the latest additions is a magnificent promenade pier, from which can be obtained extensive views of the Menai Straits and bridges and the Snowdonian range of mountains. About a quarter of an hour's walk will bring one to the famous Menai Bridge (from which can be seen the Britannia Tubular Bridge), and then the road points to the charming watering-place of Beaumaris. An omnibus runs between there and Bangor Station, or passengers can cross by ferry boat. From Bangor there is a branch line to Bethesda, where the Penrhyn slate quarries are located, and this is also the route for a very fine coach drive through the Pass of Nant Francon and by Ogwen Lake.

During the summer season steamers call daily at Bangor en route between Llandudno and Menai Bridge, the trip being most delightful in either direction.

Enquire at the railway station for programme and bills giving particulars of rail and coach tours, cheap day excursions, &c.

CARNARVON CASTLE.

CARNARVON AND LLANBERIS.

THE historic Castle and the close proximity of Carnarvon to Llanberis and the Snowdon district easily account for the choice of this place by large numbers as a holiday resort. The noble edifice, built by Edward I., has been pronounced the finest castle in Great Britain, and visitors will find that a short time spent amongst the ruins will be full of interest. Those of a studious inclination will derive much assistance from the Illustrated Guide Book, which is sent on application (with 1½d. postage) to the borough surveyor. Excellent fishing, abundant facilities for boating, a fine public park, and good promenade are included in the many attractions.

Llanberis is but a short distance by rail from Carnarvon, and here will be found some of the grandest scenery in North Wales, being in the neighbourhood of Beddgelert (Gelert's Grave), Aberglaslyn Pass, Capel Curig, &c. Close to Llanberis Station is the terminus of the Snowdon Mountain Tramroad, by which ascent can be made to the highest point in Wales. The panoramic views obtained all along this route are varied and beautiful in the extreme, and those who prefer to reach Snowdon summit without any individual effort will embrace the convenience of the tramroad with no small amount of satisfaction.

From the principal stations on the North Wales coast cheap tickets are issued to Llanberis, allowing the holders time for the ascent of Snowdon, either by foot or tramroad, before returning home.

HOLYHEAD MOUNTAIN.

HOLYHEAD.

MUCH interest is centred in Holyhead as being the port from and to which steamers ply between England and Ireland, and no little pleasure is obtained by witnessing the progress of the splendid boats owned by the London and North Western Company or the City of Dublin Steam Packet Company. As there are services to three ports on the opposite side of the channel, namely, to North Wall (Dublin), Greenore, and Kingstown, a frequent scene of life and animation is unfolded. Passengers to Ireland wishing to break their journey before making the sea passage will find that the London and North Western Company's hotel at Holyhead affords accommodation of the highest standard at reasonable charges. The chief natural attraction is the mountain, 719 feet high, from which the view reaches on a clear day to Morecambe Bay, the Isle of Man, and Ireland. The harbour breakwater took thirty years to build, and provides a delightful marine promenade of a mile and a half in length.

ABERYSTWYTH.

THERE was a time when the journey from London to Aberystwyth would, perhaps, be regarded as long and troublesome, but now that passengers can place themselves comfortably in a corridor lavatory carriage running through by express train from Euston to the Cambrian Coast no such idea can reasonably exist, and it should also be noted that the traveller passes through many miles of delightful, ever-changing scenery. Why not, then, spend the holidays amidst the charming surroundings of Aberystwyth? There is good accommodation for all classes of visitors, splendid sea front, long promenade, and excellent beach. Grand views and exhilarating breezes are obtained from Constitution Hill, and there is a very pleasant retreat near to the old Castle walls overlooking the sea. Amongst the many picturesque drives in the neighbourhood may be mentioned those to the Devil's Bridge, Dyffryn Castle, and Strata Florida Abbey.

Holders of tourist tickets to Aberystwyth are permitted to break the journey on the Cambrian Railway at any place between Welshpool and their destination.

BARMOUTH BRIDGE.

BARMOUTH.

HERE we have extensive, silvery sands and a picturesque old town curiously built tier above tier, so that the inhabitants may be seen standing at their doors and at the same time quietly looking over their neighbours' chimneys. Fine walks are easily accessible over the adjacent hills, from which the mountain and sea views are very beautiful. It is about nine miles by rail to Dolgelley (a lovely spot, which most tourists whilst in the district will not fail to visit) for Cader Idris, one of the highest mountains in Wales, the Torrent and Precipice Walks. Other interesting health resorts not a great distance from Barmouth are Harlech, Towyn, and Aberdovey.

Intending passengers wishing to make a tour of this delightful region are recommended to take tickets at London (Euston), Birmingham, Manchester, Liverpool, and other principal stations for the Snowdon Circular Tour, by which a visit may be made to Welshpool, Aberystwyth, Barmouth, Dolgelley, Llanberis (for Snowdon), Llandudno, Chester, and almost any intermediate station. Ask at London and North Western Town Office or station for programme giving fares and further particulars.

PWLLHELI.

PWLLHELI AND DISTRICT.

THE remarkably fine beach and exceptional advantages for bathing (the tide never receding more than one hundred feet from the promenade) are, probably, the chief causes for the growing popularity of Pwllheli. River and deep-sea fishing abound, and there are also excellent facilities for yachting, boating, cycling, and golfing. A great attraction, too, is the Marine Tramway running to Llanbedrog, where there is a magnificent art gallery.

Nevin is reached either from Chwilog or from Pwllheli Station. It has a fine beach, and anyone desirous of spending a holiday in a delightful retreat, far from railway or any semblance of town life, will do well to bear this spot in mind.

Criccieth, with its castle standing on a hill rising from the sea, is another resort, pleasantly situated on the shores of Cardigan Bay, fast becoming popular.

Passengers holding tourist tickets from London (Euston), Birmingham, Manchester, Liverpool, &c., to Pwllheli, Criccieth, or Portmadoc, may travel either via the Cambrian Railway (Machynlleth) or via Chester and Bangor. Those for Chwilog travel via Chester and Bangor.

PROMENADE, BLACKPOOL.

BLACKPOOL.

“WHAT!” said a Lancashire man to a Londoner, “never been to Blackpool! Then you don’t know what a pleasure resort is like! You’ve missed the greatest show in the kingdom!” And certainly anyone visiting this home of wonders for the first time will be amazed at the number and the variety of the entertainments provided for visitors from morning till night, a sixpenny piece covering hours of enjoyment in palatial buildings with ballroom, theatre, menagerie, aquarium, &c. Besides this, the very extensive sands, splendid sea air, the new (widened) promenade, the three piers, steamer trips, and electric trams all go to account for the immense popularity of this place.

There is a good service of trains between Blackpool and Fleetwood, which, in addition to being a very pleasant spot, is interesting as the port from which steamers ply to the Isle of Man and to Belfast and Londonderry. A pleasurable trip is from Blackpool to Fleetwood by train, and thence by boat to Barrow, returning the same route or by rail via Preston.

MORECAMBE PROMENADE.

MORECAMBE.

SEATED on the picturesque Bay of Morecambe, surrounded by pleasant rural scenery, and famous for its salubrious sea air, this is an excellent place to spend a holiday. Amongst the attractions are an abundant provision for sea-bathing, a prolific fishing ground, and ample facilities for boating and yachting. Few watering-places have such a long promenade. Given a clear day, you have most glorious views of land, water, hill, and dale ; and the resplendent sunsets are inspiring in their grandeur. Entertainments are provided at the Winter Gardens, Royalty Theatre, Alhambra, and several other places.

The Lake District is easily accessible, and cheap tickets are issued daily during the season to Windermere, Grange, Furness Abbey, &c.

Shortly before arrival at Morecambe passengers pass through Lancaster (where the journey may be broken), a historic county town with its castle and many buildings of interest.

BRATHAY BRIDGE, AMBLESIDE.

WINDERMERE AND THE LAKE DISTRICT.

HOW can even a faint idea of the beauty of the English Lake District be conveyed to those unacquainted with the spot in the small space at our disposal? Yet, we must try and persuade the uninitiated to make an imperative resolution that they will gather within the store of their memory some of the varied and picturesque scenes, unexcelled for their charm and beauty, which abound amidst the lakes and mountains of Westmorland and Cumberland. Windermere stands out as a place which must be included in the tour, and by travelling to the London and North Western station you are in the heart of the district, and able to obtain good accommodation, and every facility for making excursions to the many points of interest. There is another route to Windermere via London and North Western Railway, Carnforth, and the Furness line to Lake Side Station, whence the steamer is taken to Bowness. The headquarters can be fixed here, or you travel by omnibus up to Windermere Village. By climbing the neighbouring hills, notably Orrest Head, which is close to the station, many grand views may be obtained ; that looking down upon the lake, decked with fair green islets, being particularly impressive. The numberless trees, with their wonderful foliage, intermingling in the view with water and mountain, cannot fail to present to the observant mind effective pictures of scenic grandeur.

About five miles from Windermere is the little town of Ambleside (reached by coach or from Bowness by steamer), situated near the head of Windermere Lake. Its surroundings teem with natural beauties, and afford endless opportunities for mountain-climbing or less exhaustive trips by the tourist. Amongst the more noteworthy destinations are the magnificent waterfall of Stockgill Force, the Rydal Falls, Dungeon Gill, and the Langdale Pikes.

Rydal Water is but a short distance from Ambleside. The region is rendered classic by the residence at Rydal Mount, during the first half of the nineteenth century, of the poet Wordsworth, who has included in many of his graceful lines praises of the county he loved so well.

On the road between Windermere and Keswick we also pass the delightful village of Grasmere, where, near the quaint old church, Wordsworth was buried. The lake, about a mile in length, is surrounded by mountains, from which the landscape views are particularly grand.

Passengers wishing to make a tour through the districts here mentioned are recommended to take tickets for the "Lake District Circular Tour," covering the journey to Windermere (London and North Western), coach thence to Keswick, and home by rail from the latter place via Penrith. Ask at the principal stations for Tourist Programme, giving fares.

KESWICK, DERWENTWATER.

KESWICK may be considered as the most convenient centre for the Cumberland Lakes, as is Windermere for those of Westmorland. It is here where the religious gathering known as the Keswick Convention takes place each summer, attracting some hundreds from all parts of the country.

Amidst the marvellous array of grassy hills, bare fells, and lofty mountains, so thickly clustering around this little market town, many an exhilarating climb may be enjoyed over such heights as Causey Pike (2,000 feet), Grisedale Pike (2,593 feet), Skiddaw (3,054 feet); or a trip may be taken across the mountains to Patterdale or Buttermere.

Derwentwater lies about a quarter of a mile from Keswick, stretching its islanded waters southward—a dream of silver and sylvan loveliness. A splendid view of the lake is obtained from Friar's

LODORE FALLS, DERWENTWATER

Crag, of which Ruskin makes mention. Tourists must not neglect to visit the Falls of Lodore, made famous by Southey's well-known poem, and Borrowdale, at the lake's upper end, with its strangely poised Bowder Stone, holding the palm of all the valleys of Lakeland.

Passengers holding tourist tickets to Keswick may break their journey at Penrith, and at any station between that place and Keswick. Tickets can also be obtained covering the rail journey to Keswick, coach thence to Windermere, and home by train via Oxenholme.

HEAD OF ULLSWATER.

PENRITH, ULLSWATER.

THE English Lake District is admittedly the finest holiday resort in the kingdom, and there are few lakes in that delightful playground of greater charm than Ullswater, which has won for itself the title of the English Lucerne. Penrith, an important and historic town on the London and North Western Railway system, and also a junction for the North Eastern Railway and Cockermouth Keswick and Penrith Railway, is an excellent centre for seeing all that is best in the Lake District, the many important lakes to which it gives easy access making it an ideal place from which to start on a tour through a district which will well repay visiting. Ullswater is only five miles from the town, and its wild and rugged beauty is a fitting sequel to one of the prettiest coaching drives to be had anywhere. Hawes Water is about ten miles distant, and is approached from Penrith through the beautiful Lowther country; Brothers Water is within easy reach of Ullswater; whilst the town of Keswick, with lovely Derwent Water, Bassenthwaite and Thirlmere is distant eighteen miles, and is easily accessible by rail. Windermere, Grasmere, and Coniston may also be reached very readily, day trips being run during the season. There are many other notable places in the immediate vicinity of Penrith, such as Nunnery Walks with its cascades; the historic ruins of Penrith and Brougham Castles ; Lowther Castle, the Westmorland seat of the Earl of Lonsdale ; Edenhall, with its fairy legend ; Brougham Hall, reminiscent of the great Lord Brougham ; and other places with literary and historic associations and a heritage of natural beauty.

But the greatest attraction is undoubtedly the near vicinity of Ullswater, which is second to Windermere in point of size, but which, it is claimed, is second to none in point of beauty. The scenery of Ullswater is very fine, the mountain masses of the Helvellyn range at the head of the lake being unequalled in rugged grandeur throughout the Lake District. The steam yachts of the Ullswater Navigation and Transit Company ply throughout the season between Pooley Bridge at the Penrith end of the lake and Patterdale, a distance of nine miles, and the tourist by this method is enabled to see a magnificent panorama of mountain and lake scenery. The steamers run in connection with the coach service from Penrith, which again meet the trains of the London and North Western Railway. The shores of Ullswater give the charm of variety : pastoral and low-lying at the Pooley end, and becoming wild and mountainous as Patterdale is approached, the lower slopes of the hills being well wooded right down to the lake side. The walk from Patterdale to Aira Force, a lovely waterfall, immortalised by Wordsworth, is probably the most beautiful in the three kingdoms, as it follows the shores of the lake all the way, mostly through the famous Glencoin and Gowbarrow Parks and past the equally well-known Stybarrow Crag. Gowbarrow Park, with the Aira Force and Glen, has been purchased for the nation by the National Trust for £12,800. The most entrancing views of the Lake may be had from any part of the property. There are many other objects of interest at Ullswater, and many delightful tramps may be had amongst the mountain masses which hem in the head of the lake, the ascent of Helvellyn having a great attraction for the more hardy. Ambleside is easily reached by way of the Kirkstone Pass, which is close to Ullswater. Excellent and reasonable hotel and private accommodation will be found either at Penrith or in the Ullswater district.

DOUGLAS PROMENADE.

THE ISLE OF MAN.

THERE are some people who consider that they have not had a holiday unless a sea trip is included in their journey. To this section of the community the numerous attractions of the Isle of Man will forcibly appeal. The spacious and comfortable boats of the Isle of Man Steam Packet Company perform the passage between Liverpool and Douglas in about four hours; or the journey may be made by the shorter sea route via Fleetwood. So that ample opportunities are afforded for reaching the island, and when there it will be a surprise if the visitor is not charmed with the variety and splendour of the scenery, the rocks, glens, valleys, and mountain heights. It would be difficult to find a resort where more facilities exist to enable the holiday maker to pass his time crowded with enjoyment of every description. Steamer trips, boating, bathing, coach drives, theatres, dancing are but a few of the many attractions; and yet it is easily possible to get away from anything like bustle and excitement to a retreat where the calm and peaceful surroundings create an impression of solitude and rest. It is said that the climate is the mildest in winter and the coolest in summer of all health resorts.

The Secretary of the Official Board of Advertising for the Isle of Man will send Guide Book and other information on application.

Passengers can obtain tickets at London (Euston), Birmingham, Manchester, and Liverpool, for a tour via Holyhead and Dublin to the Isle of Man, returning via Liverpool. See L. & N. W. Tourist Programme for fares for this trip.

Frequent Excursions at cheap fares are arranged from London (Euston), Birmingham, Manchester, and other towns to Douglas via Liverpool or via Fleetwood.

Passengers leaving Euston by the 10.30 a.m. express during the summer season are due to reach Douglas about 6.30 p.m. (via Liverpool).

NOTICE.

READERS are requested to note that this List only purports to give information of Lodging and Hotel Accommodation to be obtained in the vicinity of stations on the LONDON AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY COMPANY'S system. It does not pretend to guarantee the accuracy of the statements made by the advertisers, nor of the attractions offered to visitors, but every effort has been made by the Publisher to ensure accuracy, and all entries deemed undesirable have been omitted.

The public are advised, before engaging any rooms, or staying at any hotel advertised in this book, to take the same precautions in regard to references, &c., as they would when engaging any other advertised house, apartments, or rooms.

All applications respecting apartments or other lodging accommodation should be made either on a reply post card or by letter enclosing stamped addressed envelope for reply.

The Publisher realises that the greatest care may not succeed in avoiding some mistakes, but he hopes that any errors and imperfections which may be discovered will be communicated to him, so that they may be removed from future editions.

BEAUTIFUL WESTMORLAND.

DAILY DRIVES FROM KENDAL.

The Country round Kendal is famous for beautiful views and historic associations. In connection with the usual train service, Mr. A. H. SIMPSON has arranged a programme of drives through this delightful country. Combined tickets, covering rail and coach, are issued from most L. & N. W. Ry. booking offices.

(LONGSLEDDALE—SIMPSON'S DRIVES.)

The following are some of the drives arranged for the 1908 Holiday Season : for further particulars consult the Railway Co.'s handbills :—

LONGSLEDDALE.

To Kendal by rail, thence coach to the head of Longsleddale, the Long Whindale of "Robert Elsmere." The drive is by beautiful country lanes, and after arrival about 2½ hours are allowed for rambles about the rugged fells and ghylls, and picturesque waterfalls. Refreshments may be had at the farm where the coach puts up.

GARNETT BRIDGE, &c.

To Kendal by rail, thence coach by Laverock Bridge and the Scar, to Patton and Garnett Bridge, crossing the great Scotland road, obtaining all the way unrivalled views of the fells. The return to Kendal is by Burnside Hall, an ancient border fort

LEVENS GARDENS.

To Kendal by rail, thence coach by Sizergh Castle to Levens Hall. Here a stop of 30 minutes enables passengers (by kind permission of Capt. Bagot) to inspect the quaint, world-famous gardens. This Tour is the only one by which visitors can gain admission to Levens Gardens. The journey is continued through the beautiful woodlands of Brigsteer Park, &c.

All particulars concerning these Tours may be had of the Booking Clerk, or on application, post free, from

A. H. SIMPSON, County Mews, Kendal.
